IVU expands Executive Board: Leon Struijk appointed CCO

IVU Traffic Technologies AG is expanding its Executive Board: With effect from 1 February 2018, the Supervisory Board has appointed Leon Struijk as the third member of the managing body of the Berlin-based IT specialist for public transport. Besides CEO Martin Müller-Elschner and CTO Matthias Rust, he will be CCO (Chief Customer Officer) with responsibility for Projects and Sales.

Leon Struijk (47) comes from the Netherlands, where he gained extensive experience in public transport. He studied business administration at the University of Amsterdam and worked at PwC and Connexion before founding the bus company Qbuzz with a partner in 2008. The company established itself on the market quickly and successfully thanks to innovative IT systems and high-quality customer service.

As CCO, Leon Struijk will take care of customer relationships in projects and of national and international sales. Together with the Executive Board Chairman and CEO Martin Müller-Elschner (49) and CTO Matthias Rust (49) – responsible for Products, Development and Innovation – the IVU Executive Board is now complete.
